

Legal Representation Resources for Personal Income Tax Cases

The court recognizes that effective legal assistance can help to resolve many cases more quickly and efficiently, including through settlement where appropriate. For that reason, the Oregon Tax Court provides the names and contact information below as a starting point for taxpayers. The court does not endorse or recommend any specific organization.

The organizations listed below provide or coordinate free or reduced-fee legal assistance for taxpayers who meet criteria set by the organizations. Each organization has case selection criteria and income thresholds that are unique to that organization and subject to change. Funding constraints and limitations built into federal law and/or grant contracts may prevent a clinic from assisting in a particular case. For example, some clinics can only assist you with a state tax law issue if your case also includes an issue related to federal tax law.

If you intend to contact one of the following organizations for help with your case, you should do so as soon as possible. If you delay in contacting an organization, it may be more difficult for the organization to help you or for you to properly prepare your case.
